Medical Alert

For tenants of Saskatchewan
housing agencies

Live independently in your own home

Get assistance with the press of a button

What is Medical Alert?

Medical Alert is a personal emergency response system that is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The personal help button

Your Medical Alert device will have a personal help button that:

- sends a signal to SecurTek when the button is pressed;
- may be worn on your wrist or around your neck as a pendant; and
- is water resistant and can be worn in the shower.

How does Medical Alert work?

If you ever need assistance while in your home, press your personal help button or the help button on the Control Panel.

An attendant will respond to you using the speaker on the Control Panel. You will not need to pick up the phone.

If you are not able to answer the attendant or if you need help, the attendant will call emergency services.

Homes with Medical Alert must have a traditional phone.

Fall Detection

Many injuries that occur in a home involve falling. Delay in receiving assistance after a fall can jeopardize or lengthen recovery.

You can add a Fall Detection device to your Medical Alert system. This device:

- will detect if you fall in your home and call SecurTek;
- can be worn as a pendant or be clipped to your belt or clothing; and
- includes the personal help button.

What does Medical Alert cost?

The cost for Medical Alert, including the equipment rental, is $21.50 per month. The Fall Detection device costs an additional $6.50 per month.

For your convenience, Medical Alert charges can be included on your SaskTel phone bill. SaskTel customers may also be eligible for a bundle price reduction of $5.00 per month.

Tenants of Saskatchewan housing agencies do not have to pay an installation fee.
